

Singapore Airlines: Supporting Australia

Throughout the Covid-19 pandemic, Singapore Airlines has continued to ensure Australia remains connected to the world, allowing customers to undertake essential travel or return home in a Covid-safe manner. Using their passenger aircraft to carry cargo only, they have ensured key trade channels remained opened to support the movement of essential cargo around the globe. Since April 2020, Singapore Airlines has helped deliver millions of essential surgical masks to Australia, ventilators, PPE, Covid -19 testing kits and on the 15 February 2021 the first doses of the Pfizer-BioNTech Covid-19 vaccine.

During this same period, they have supported Australian producers exporting more than 13.2kg millions of perishable goods including, avocados, strawberries, stone fruits, broccoli and other fresh fruits and vegetables. Singapore Airlines has also helped to deliver more than 9.6kg millions of chilled Australian meat, including beef, pork and lamb to markets around the world and over 1.9kg millions of fresh lobsters.

For more than 50 years Singapore Airlines has been committed to connecting Australia to the world and as they continue to navigate the COVID-19 pandemic, their commitment to maintaining this connection remains unwavering.
